Description

So how does a 2017 Bell 505 end up in 2023 with only 28 hours TT? Firstly, it's practically a 2018 model being the last ship off the line in Dec 2017. Then it shipped to the middle east where it ran headlong into COVID and it wasn't until OCT 2021 that they flushed out the preservation fluid and it went to the flight line. The bulk of hours flown happened until DEC 2022 when the owner offered it to us for sale. If you want an "as new" 505 that looks, smells, and fly's like a factory ship - then give me a call. If you're in the market for a Long Ranger or an L4, then you will know the market is tight. The Bell 505 is a sensible alternative with all the running gear of the L4 combined with a hot and high engine that makes the Jet Ranger X an excellent first helicopter for private buyers. It has all the modern technology, with improved fuel efficiency, and lower acquisition costs compared to the Airbus H125. The GARMIN fully digital glass cockpit, intuitive control system, and spacious cabin with large windows and fast cruise speeds have revolutionized the two-bladed system. This ship is flawless - give me a call how we can make it yours. Stephen Boyce
